Traditionally, data backup and recovery solutions were sold on a perpetual licence model. The licence was billed upfront and the cost was based on a business's estimated capacity and usage. With the SaaS industry booming, preferences have changed, and the subscription licensing model has proven to be more popular.

With a subscription licence, new software adoption becomes less risky. By spreading payments across the year, it preserves your cashflow. As billing cycles align with most cloud vendors, it's a future-ready solution too – recognising the growing desire to move to cloud computing. And crucially, on a subscription model, you only ever pay for what you use.

Key Benefits

Every business, no matter how successful, needs to spread its outgoings across the year – that's why the Predatar platform is available on a subscription basis.

Predatar Insights is free, forever
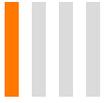

There are no upfront costs

You only pay for what you use

Predatar has four plans to choose from, and they've all been created to flex with your needs. The pricing structure is based on TBs of usage, so you'll only pay for what you need. There are no upfront costs and you can switch plans whenever you want. You can even add your IBM Spectrum Protect licences to the subscription to balance that cost too.

How it works

Insights:

To see what our platform is all about, you can get started for free. The whole team will gain access to your account (every plan comes with unlimited users) and you'll be free to explore Predatar's Analytics with a month's worth of history.

Entry:

If historic data is your thing, the Entry plan will give you a full year's worth of insights to help you spot – and act on – data trends. You can configure and customise as many dashboards as you want, so the team can easily digest the data they need.

Plus:

The devil's in the detail. If you want to get in-depth insights from your whole history of backups, go for the Plus plan. You'll also unlock customisable alerting and support ticketing for your backup and recovery environment. Wherever your team's based and whatever device they're using, they'll be able to efficiently review any issues.

Premium:

With our Premium plan, you can lean on automation to free up your team's time. Let them concentrate on the more complex issues, while Predatar tackles the time-consuming and repetitive tasks, such as DR tests. Thanks to our patented machine learning technology, we also offer a 100% restore guarantee.
